After participating in the failed attempt to relieve Stalingrad in late 1942/early 1943, the 6th Panzer fought in 1943 at Karkov and Kursk. After some initial advances at Kursk, the 6th was slowed by mine-fields and suffered a major loss when its commander, General von Huenersdorff was fatally wounded in action. The division continued to fight on the eastern front for the rest of the war, finally surrendering to the Russians at the end in Austria.
